Reading Resources for the Classroom

With the Summer holidays looming we're sure teachers and students are looking forward to the school break.However, here at Futa Fata HQ we are busy working on new reading resources which will be available for free download once the schools open again in September. Our resources, prepared with input from practising teachers, will cover not only the text of our novels and the enhancement of the Irish language for school children but will also provide a platform to discuss many themes already on the SPHE curriculum. We are confident this new tool will add an interesting and dynamic aspect to the classroom – it might even help nurture the next generation of writers and illustrators!
